Agricultural Green Paper Released

The Australian Government has released the Agricultural Competitiveness Green Paper and is asking everyone in agriculture to have their say on a range of new proposals and policy suggestions.

Minister for Agriculture, Barnaby Joyce, said "the Green Paper outlines fresh ideas on a range of vitally important issues for the future of our nation including infrastructure, drought support, trade and finance." The Green Paper presents 25 diverse policy themes for consideration.

The Minister is looking for feedback from farmers about the most important ideas and policies needed to take agriculture forward.

Submissions are open online until 12 December 2014.
